Prudential Risk Rating

Medium Risk

These funds may invest in multi-asset strategies with a higher weighting in equities (or with significant derivative use), while funds investing mainly in property, high yield or government bonds (such as UK Gilts) are also in this category.

These risk ratings have been developed by Prudential to help provide an indication of a fund's potential level of risk and reward based on the type of assets which may be held by the fund. Other companies may use different descriptions and as such these risk ratings should not be considered as generic across the fund management industry.

We regularly review our fund risk ratings, so they may change in the future. If, in our view, there is a material change in the fund's level of risk, for example due to a significant change to the assets held by the fund or in the way the fund is managed, we will provide information on the new risk rating. We recommend that you make sure you understand the risk rating of any fund before you invest.

Important Information

- Because of changes in exchange rates the value of your investment, as well as any money you take from it, can go down as well as up.
- Please note the performance figures for this fund's benchmark are not available until around week 3 after a quarter end. So the figures shown until then might be for the previous quarter.
- Some funds may invest in 'underlying' funds or other investment vehicles. The performance of our fund, compared to what it's invested in won't be exactly the same. That can be due to additional charges, cash management (needed to help people to enter and leave our fund when they want), tax and the timing of investments (this is known as a fund's dealing cycle, it varies between managers and can be several days).

Commentary

Performance as at Q4 2023 - It was a positive fourth quarter for most financial assets, with investor sentiment supported by the easing of inflationary pressures, optimism about forthcoming rate cuts by central banks and a potential economic 'soft landing'. After an initial period of weakness, the year ended with a powerful two-month rally in equity and bond markets. The fund gained in the quarter and was broadly in line with the benchmark and ahead of the comparator. Europe and the US were among the strongest performers, while all main markets registered gains, all in sterling terms. The European Central Bank kept interest rates on hold during the quarter and investors became more optimistic about interest rate cuts in 2024. Similarly, US equities were supported by increased speculation that the US Federal Reserve had ended its interest rate hiking cycle as inflation continues to fall. Pacific and emerging markets were held back by the weak performance of China and Hong Kong. Interest rates in Japan are very low but the Japanese stockmarket rallied on the back of hopes that rates in other major economies had peaked and would begin falling in 2024. The UK was one of the weaker regions globally, as concerns about the subdued economy weighed on sentiment. Stockpicking in the US was beneficial, while selection in the UK detracted. So too did stockpicks in Pacific markets, Europe, Japan and emerging markets, although to a lesser extent. In terms of fixed income, expectations for cuts in interest rates also supported global bond markets, with both government and corporate bonds performing well. In particular, UK government bonds (gilts) outperformed both US and German government bonds, and were supported by an easing of annual inflation to 3.9%, raising expectations that the Bank of England would start cutting interest rates this year. Meanwhile, the fund's allocation to property was beneficial. As inflation continues to ease, alongside the positive fundamentals of the US economy and the potential for a beneficial 'spillover' impact on the global economy, we retain a moderately above-benchmark position in equities. As part of the long-term strategic asset allocation review, we implemented a small update to the portfolio, reducing our exposure to UK, Asian and European equities. We increased the allocation to fixed interest, taking new positions in US government bonds, based on a valuation perspective. The allocation to Alternatives was increased and diversified through the introduction of infrastructure assets. We also sold some UK property and started exposure to European and Asian property. While central banks continue to keep monetary policy tight enough to drive inflation back towards the 2% target, there is growing evidence of a continued softening in inflation. This has led investors to focus on the potential for central banks to ease policy rates to prevent further restriction to the economy, and prospects for a global economic 'soft landing'. Recent price moves suggest equities and bonds are priced for this 'goldilocks' outcome, although evidence increasingly suggests that higher borrowing costs are slowing economic activity.
