FUND ADVISER'S REPORT

In January Primary Health Properties made an all share offer for MedicX, the latter being a top 5 holding within the Fund.

The Fund recorded a gain of 3.83% in January (C Acc), which represents the second largest discrete monthly return since its inception and lifted NAV to a new all-time high of 122.9p (C Acc). This milestone was achieved in tandem with the Fund celebrating its third anniversary. Since its launch in January 2016 we believe the portfolio has delivered what it set out to achieve; a 5% net income yield per annum, capital preservation in real terms, low absolute and relative volatility, and low correlation to other asset classes.

In January Primary Health Properties (PHP) made an all share offer for MedicX, the latter being a top 5 holding within the Fund. Under the terms of the proposed deal MedicX shareholders will receive 0.77 PHP shares for each share held in MedicX. Based on PHP's closing share price ahead of the announcement the offer valued MedicX shares at 88.7p, which equated to a 10.5% premium to MedicX's dividend-adjusted NAV and a c.14% premium to the prevailing share price pre-offer.

The proposed transaction appears highly logical and strategically sound for both sets of shareholders. There are significant cost synergies (estimated at £4m per annum) and the combined group should have better access to capital and its cost of debt should be lower. For PHP it is an efficient way to grow its portfolio (since Stamp Duty Land Tax will not be payable) and the two portfolios are complementary in terms of location. The combined portfolio will have rental income split as follows: RPI-linked 22%, open market review 72%, fixed uplifts 6% with NHS cash flows representing 90% of the combined entity.

We noted MedicX's good results in last month's commentary but despite continued strong operational performance, MedicX had traded at a significant discount since altering its dividend policy (in May 2018) in order to reinvest and drive capital growth. This transition towards a more balanced approach to returns did not warrant the de-rating at share price level and this transaction demonstrates that if public markets don't value a company appropriately the latent value will be identified by private market participants or in this case, a peer.

Elsewhere in the portfolio there was strong performance from the renewables sector. Greencoat UK Wind extended the assumed lives of its assets (from 25 years to 30 years), which resulted in a sizeable 6.7 pence per share uplift to the company's NAV. As an early mover in this regard, there is a clear read-across for other listed renewables companies. This expectation provided the catalyst for broader sector strength, which was probably justified since we would anticipate similar assumption changes to be adopted by Greencoat's peer group in time.

Recovering swiftly from December's losses, the early stages of 2019 have provided a relatively benign environment for the listed infrastructure sector. While the sector benefits from having a multitude of defensive characteristics, we remain vigilant and certainly not complacent, whilst the backdrop of Brexit-related uncertainty persists.
