Fund manager's commentaryMain changes to the portfolio during December

There were no major changes to the portfolio.

Factors affecting performance during December

Global equity markets increased in December, with the MSCI World Index rising 0.6%, while the technology sector outperformed, with the MSCI World Information Technology Index gaining 1.6%.

Notable performers during the month included TeamViewer, a German company providing remote access software tools; microprocessor and graphics chips business Advanced Micro Devices; and Cirrus Logic, which design audio semiconductors that are used in smartphones and headsets.

Current market influences and outlook

Global equity markets received an early Christmas present as uncertainty over the US-China trade dispute and Brexit were seemingly resolved.

In the US, President Donald Trump announced a trade resolution was imminent; while in the UK, a successful general election for the Conservative party provided clarity over the time line for the UK to leave the European Union. As these uncertainties are lifted, confidence levels for investing should improve and the technology sector will be a beneficiary of this.

Looking out to 2020, expectations for IT spending growth are healthy; meanwhile, the semiconductor cycle is showing signs of a bottom, which should lead to year-on-year growth during the coming year. The Fund is well positioned to benefit from both.

Past performance is not a guide to future performance. The value of investments and the income from them can fall as well as rise and you may not get back the full amount originally invested. Before investing you should read the fund's Key Investor Information Document (KIID) for full product details including investment risks and contact a financial adviser where unsure.
