Prudential Risk Rating

Higher Risk

These are specialist equity funds that focus on set geographical regions or a particular type of share e.g. shares of smaller companies or those that conform to certain criteria.

These risk ratings have been developed by Prudential to help provide an indication of a fund's potential level of risk and reward based on the type of assets which may be held by the fund. Other companies may use different descriptions and as such these risk ratings should not be considered as generic across the fund management industry.

We regularly review our fund risk ratings, so they may change in the future. If, in our view, there is a material change in the fund's level of risk, for example due to a significant change to the assets held by the fund or in the way the fund is managed, we will provide information on the new risk rating. We recommend that you make sure you understand the risk rating of any fund before you invest.

Important Information

- Because of changes in exchange rates the value of your investment, as well as any money you take from it, can go down as well as up.
- Some funds may invest in 'underlying' funds or other investment vehicles. The performance of our fund, compared to what it's invested in won't be exactly the same. That can be due to additional charges, cash management (needed to help people to enter and leave our fund when they want), tax and the timing of investments (this is known as a fund's dealing cycle, it varies between managers and can be several days).

Prudential BlackRock Aquila UK Equity Index S3

Commentary

Performance as at Q2 2025 - The second quarter of 2025 was marked by persistent global uncertainty with President Trump's tariff announcements in April setting the tone for a period of heightened volatility. Geopolitical tensions intensified, particularly in the Middle East, where the Israel—Palestine conflict expanded into warfare involving Iran, drawing in US forces, whilst hostilities between Ukraine and Russia continued. The NATO alliance also came under strain, especially from President Trump's renewed demands. In response, European member states committed to increasing defence spending, targeting 5% of Gross Domestic Product by 2035.

Despite these geopolitical risks, global markets rallied from April lows, buoyed by pockets of growth, improving tariff clarity, and declining inflation. In the UK, the pressure on public finances continued with policy reversals leading to rising expectations for tax increases. Labour market indicators softened, easing wage pressures, while falling energy prices helped lower inflation. This provided room for the Bank of England Governor, Andrew Bailey, to signal the prospect of gradual rate cuts. Dollar weakness, however, persisted with the proposal of a deficit-expanding 'big, beautiful bill' and increased, political pressure on the Federal Reserve to cut rates.
