Prudential Risk Rating

Medium to Higher Risk

These funds offer a diverse geographical spread of equity investment or have multi-asset strategies with a specialist focus (e.g. ethical). The equity funds within this category will have greater overseas exposure and underlying volatility than the "medium" sector.

These risk ratings have been developed by Prudential to help provide an indication of a fund's potential level of risk and reward based on the type of assets which may be held by the fund. Other companies may use different descriptions and as such these risk ratings should not be considered as generic across the fund management industry.

We regularly review our fund risk ratings, so they may change in the future. If, in our view, there is a material change in the fund's level of risk, for example due to a significant change to the assets held by the fund or in the way the fund is managed, we will provide information on the new risk rating. We recommend that you make sure you understand the risk rating of any fund before you invest.

You should also consider discussing your decision and the appropriateness of a fund's risk rating with an adviser.

Important Information

- Because of changes in exchange rates the value of your investment, as well as any money you take from it, can go down as well as up.
- Some funds may invest in 'underlying' funds or other investment vehicles. The performance of our fund, compared to what it's invested in won't be exactly the same. That can be due to additional charges, cash management (needed to help people to enter and leave our fund when they want), tax and the timing of investments (this is known as a fund's dealing cycle, it varies between managers and can be several days).

Commentary

Performance as at Q4 2024 - Market performance over November was heavily influenced by the outcome of the US election. Trump's victory and the Republican party's majority win across both chambers of Congress supported the view that "US exceptionalism" can continue. Expectations for corporate tax cuts, expansionary fiscal policy, and a nationalist trade policy drove US equity markets higher with US small caps ending the month as the standout performers. Whilst the stark outperformance of US equities resulted in positive returns for global equities given their weight in global indices, the election outcome was not received positively by equity markets outside the US primarily due to the stronger US dollar and the prospect of trade tariffs. Indeed, trade concerns caused equities in Europe ex-UK to provide negative returns, as did Emerging Market equities, which were further impacted by the US dollar strength and potential for a less supportive US monetary environment from here. Waning views that the Chinese government support measures will be enough to boost the domestic economy also worked to spur further weakness in Chinese Equities. The UK equity market, on the other hand, benefitted from the strong performance from financials, which make up a significant part of the index. Global bonds only benefitted marginally despite the Federal Reserve's decision to cut interest rates by a further 25 basis points, as the potential for Trump's fiscal measures to be inflationary led to a downward revision in expectations for future interest rates cuts. Given the subsequent strength in the US dollar, EUR and GBP based investors in bonds benefitted to a greater degree than USD investors.
