Aims

The objective of this fund is to maintain capital and to provide a return in line with money market rates, before charges. The fund will generally invest in short term deposits, certificates of deposit, government bonds (predominantly UK) issued in pounds sterling and Repos. In stressed market conditions, the fund may be invested up to 100% in government and public securities issued by a single issuer. The maximum maturity of the instruments the fund invests in is 397 days but the fund must maintain a weighted average maturity of less than 60 days. The bonds that the fund invests in must be investment grade (rated as lower risk). The fund may use derivatives to reduce risk or cost, or to generate additional capital or income with no, or an acceptably low, level of risk. The fund may also invest in other fixed income securities, other money market instruments and collective investment schemes.

Commentary

UK economic data releases remained generally positive, albeit marginally less so than in October and November. Third-quarter economic growth was downgraded from 0.8% to 0.7%, though data from the manufacturing sector was encouraging with exports boosted by weaker sterling. However, a surge in November's Public Sector Borrowing highlighted the poor state of UK public finances. Meanwhile concerns grew that snow-related disruption would make life even more difficult for retailers already facing a greater degree of caution among consumers. While rising food and energy costs are feeding through to inflation in many countries, UK inflation continues to cause particular concern. November's consumer price inflation unexpectedly rose to 3.3% from October's 3.2%, boosted by record rises in food, clothing and furniture prices. Nevertheless, despite reassurances from the Bank of England over its resolve, only one member of the central bank's Monetary Policy Committee continued to vote to raise interest rates, with the other members favouring no change. The sole dissenter, Dr Andrew Sentence, warned that consumer price inflation is set to rise to 4.0% this year, double its official target. Meanwhile, the Eurozone debt debacle rumbled on, with speculation growing that the crisis could force countries such as Portugal to accept assistance, though the market's real concern remains that the crisis is moving ever closer to 'core' countries. Against this backdrop, three-month sterling LIBOR rose from 0.7415% to 0.7575%.
