Important Information

- Because of changes in exchange rates the value of your investment, as well as any money you take from it, can go down as well as up.
- Some funds may invest in 'underlying' funds or other investment vehicles. The performance of our fund, compared to what it's invested in won't be exactly the same. That can be due to additional charges, cash management (needed to help people to enter and leave our fund when they want), tax and the timing of investments (this is known as a fund's dealing cycle, it varies between managers and can be several days).
- Source of portfolio data: Broadridge. Source of performance data: FE fundinfo. We can't predict the future. Past performance isn't a guide to future performance. The figures shown are intended only to demonstrate performance history of the fund, after allowing for the impact of fund charges and further costs, but take no account of product charges, or any Annual Management Charge paid for by the deduction of units. Charges and further costs may vary in the future and may be higher than they are now. Fund performance is based upon the movement of the daily price and is shown as total return in GBP with net income reinvested. The value of your investment can go down as well as up so you might get back less than you put in.

Commentary

The following commentary is for the underlying OEIC which the fund invests into

August 2025 Investment Summary

A positive month for the Active range with returns ranging from +2.24% for Active 1 to +2.59% for Active 5. *P Acc share class with data sourced from FE analytics as at 31 August 2025.

August 2025 was a positive month for markets and the portfolios, in absolute terms.

Most major equity markets saw gains, driven by strong corporate earnings, potential US rate cuts and moderating inflation. Japanese equities, led returns benefitting from the US-Japan trade deal announced at the end of July. China's strong performance supported emerging markets, with the US and China extending their trade truce to 10 November. The FTSE 100 returned +1.2%, despite the UK markets challenging backdrop with Materials, Energy, Healthcare and Financials proving to be some of the larger contributors. The Stoxx 600 edged up +1.0%, underperforming regional peers with EU Q2 earnings subdued, alongside political instability in France. Top contributors to total returns were Financials and Industrials. The S&P 500 increased +2.0% and Nasdaq climbed +1.7%, owing to stronger than expected company earnings and revised US Q2 GDP growth up to 3.3%. At a sector level, Health Care, Financials and Consumer Services were the primary contributors, while Utilities were a drag.

There were fewer trade announcements this month, however the US still imposed higher reciprocal tariffs on a range of trading partners. This included a 50% tariff on India in an attempt to discourage purchases of Russian oil, alongside new tariffs on copper (50%), and a new 35% tariff for Canada on non-US made goods.

The Federal Reserve didn't review interest rates in August, with the next meeting on September 17th. Fed chair Jay Powell noted at this month's Jackson Hole Symposium that the balance of economic risks had shifted, potentially warranting an adjustment to the Fed's policy stance. Expectations for a September rate cut subsequently pushed up to nearly 90%. The Fed's independence remained in question, with President Trump moving to fire Lisa Cook from the Board of Governors having already fired the Bureau of Labour Statistics (BLS). Investors in turn priced in faster inflation and a steeper yield curve.

There was some hope surrounding a potential Russia-Ukraine peace deal. US President Trump held separate meetings with Russian President Putin in Alaska and European Leaders in Washington, as ultimately no deal was reached. The changing likelihood of a ceasefire led to volatility in oil and European defence stocks.

Markets remain highly sensitive to a mix of economic and political developments, with recent moves driven by shifting expectations around inflation, growth, and central bank policy. While corporate earnings have generally held up, investor sentiment has become more selective, especially in light of geopolitical tensions and political uncertainty. Following Jackson Hole, the Fed's dovish tone has increased confidence in near-term rate cuts, while other central banks may take diverging paths depending on domestic inflation and labour market dynamics. This growing policy divergence raises the potential for greater dispersion across asset classes and regions in the months ahead.
