Prudential Risk Rating

Higher Risk

These are specialist equity funds that focus on set geographical regions or a particular type of share e.g. shares of smaller companies or those that conform to certain criteria.

These risk ratings have been developed by Prudential to help provide an indication of a fund's potential level of risk and reward based on the type of assets which may be held by the fund. Other companies may use different descriptions and as such these risk ratings should not be considered as generic across the fund management industry.

We regularly review our fund risk ratings, so they may change in the future. If, in our view, there is a material change in the fund's level of risk, for example due to a significant change to the assets held by the fund or in the way the fund is managed, we will provide information on the new risk rating. We recommend that you make sure you understand the risk rating of any fund before you invest.

You should also consider discussing your decision and the appropriateness of a fund's risk rating with an adviser.

Important Information

- Some funds may invest in 'underlying' funds or other investment vehicles. The performance of our fund, compared to what it's invested in won't be exactly the same. That can be due to additional charges, cash management (needed to help people to enter and leave our fund when they want), tax and the timing of investments (this is known as a fund's dealing cycle, it varies between managers and can be several days).

Commentary

Performance as at Q2 2024 - Holdings in Wise, Burberry and Legal & General lagged during the quarter. Having no exposure to HSBC and Shell, this weighed on relative returns. Shares in the global money transfer company, Wise, fell as the management team struck a more cautious tone with their medium-term guidance. Wise's underlying performance (adjusting for the favourable tailwind from higher interest rates) has been significantly ahead of expectations. Wise continues to invest in its winning proposition by lowering prices for customers. Whilst the slightly more conservative guidance disappointed the market, the Fund Manager believes the nervous share price reaction overlooks what is a very long runway for growth given the scale of the markets which Wise operates in and its small market share currently. The share price of the luxury fashion designer and retailer, Burberry, lagged during the period as management flagged that a slowdown in the global luxury market could weigh on its ability to meet its full-year profit guidance. The management team reiterated their commitment to achieving their longer-term revenue target. L&G (Legal & General) is one of the UK's leading financial institutions with a notably strong position in retirement solutions. The short term volatility in the share price came in response to the new CEO's first capital markets day presentation which outlined his plans to grow the company's dividend by 2% rather than 5% until 2027. Shares in Hargreaves Lansdown surged after the Board received an indicative takeover offer from a private equity consortium. Having rejected the initial proposal, the consortium followed up with a revised offer of 1140p per share, valuing the company at £5.4bn. Aside from the takeover bid, the Fund Manager has continued to monitor the company's operational progress, which has been disappointing over the past three years, and to engage on topics relevant to the long-term investment case. Auto Trader the online car marketplace delivered an excellent set of full-year results as it attracted a record number of consumers to its platform, it is now 10 times larger than its nearest classified competitor. Shares in Molten Ventures rose following an encouraging full-year trading update. After two years of operating against a challenging economic backdrop, the venture capital business reported signs of some green shoots emerging as valuations in its portfolio stabilised. The Fund Manager continues to see an abundance of significant and unrecognised potential in the portfolio. The Fund Manager sees it in long-standing holdings like Auto Trader and Ashtead which have been working successfully to expand their already substantial market opportunities and are embedding themselves ever more deeply into their customers' businesses. Their competitive advantages are now deeper than they have ever been. We also see it in more recent purchases such as the IT service provider Kainos which enjoys multi-decade growth tailwinds from the adoption of technology by both enterprises and the public sector and where the market fails to appreciate its unique cultural strengths which makes it stand out from competitors. Despite all the doom and gloom surrounding the state of UK innovation, the look to long-standing holdings like Renishaw and Genus whose unwavering commitment to research and development spending will yield significant results in the coming decade by enabling manufacturers and farmers across the globe to solve some of their most pressing productivity and sustainability challenges. Due to investing in companies for decades, there is great trust in management. The Fund Manager is fortunate to be invested alongside some of the most accomplished leadership teams such as those at Games Workshop and Howdens whose long-term mindsets and dedication to doing the right thing have been a crucial ingredient in the enormous success both businesses have achieved over time.
