Quarterly Fund Manager Review

US shares registered a robust advance in the quarter. Gains were supported by some well-received corporate earnings as well as ongoing expectations of rate cuts later this year. The pace of monetary policy easing is likely to be slower than had been expected at the end of last year, given resilient US economic data, but this did little to dampen appetite for equities. The S&P 500 index was boosted by good corporate earnings, including from some of the so-called “Magnificent Seven” companies. Gains were led by the communication services, energy, information technology and financials sectors. Real estate registered a negative return while utilities also lagged. The Federal Reserve (Fed) kept interest rates on hold at 5.25-5.5%. US inflation ticked up slightly to 2.5% year-on-year in February, from 2.4% in January (as measured by the personal consumption expenditure metric). Fed chair Jerome Powell said that the central bank will be “careful” about the decision on when to cut rates. The latest “dot plot” that details policymakers’ expectations of rate cuts suggests three cuts this year. Data releases generally demonstrated ongoing economic resilience. Annualised GDP growth for Q4 was revised up in the third estimate to 3.4%. Nonfarm payrolls were robust although the unemployment rate rose in February. The ISM manufacturing PMI signalled expansion after 16 straight months of contraction, rising to 50.3 in March. Presidential primaries were held in several states during the quarter. Donald Trump is the presumptive nominee of the Republican Party while his main challenger Nikki Haley dropped out of the race in March.
