Commentary<sup>4</sup>

The Company’s NAV declined 8.3% as markets priced in a lower chance of rate cuts in response to sticky inflation and continued concerns on Chinese end-demand.

Broader market concern on the pace of rate cuts weighed on the precious metal mining sector. Gold was a touch softer during the month, with larger downward moves in silver and Platinum Group Metals “PGMs” as the outlook for industrial related demand also suffered from negative sentiment. Central bank demand for gold remains strong, with the Chinese central bank officially re-entering the market and adding to its reserves. We believe the threat of US-led trade wars and tariffs should continue to support central bank gold demand, whilst strong free cash generation for the sector supports our positive 2025 outlook. Within the top 20 positions for the Company, Ora Banda, West African Resources, Calibre, Westgold and Greatland Gold all have new mine starts or expansions commencing operation over the next 12 months.

Oil strengthened during the month with further uncertainty in the Middle East following the fall of the Assad regime and its replacement by a previous Al-Qaeda spin-off group. The petroleum producing alliance group OPEC agreed to extend their quota cuts, whilst the EU and US stepped up sanctions on Russian oil exports. We remain more cautious on oil given softening Chinese demand, thus remain more gas-weighted given our higher confidence in demand fundamentals in the sector.

Uranium mine developer Nexgen gave back all its November gains and was the largest detractor over the month. We added to the Company’s Uranium exposure against softer equity prices via purchases of Fission, ahead of its acquisition by Paladin, together with ISO Energy, which has an exciting portfolio of North American uranium assets. President-elect Trump’s policies are likely to be pro-nuclear in our opinion which should provide a further demand tail wind for uranium.

In a sign of early trade tensions, China escalated the rhetoric following recent US restrictions on the export of high-bandwidth memory chips to China. This took the form of the introduction of a ban on the export of germanium and gallium (used in high-end semiconductors) and antimony (fire retardant), alongside tungsten products. We believe this heightens the risk that the Chinese government could also use enriched uranium supply as another tool for geopolitical leverage in a clear sign of a “tit-for-tat” trade response to Trump’s threats.

On 18th December 2024, the Company received a requisition notice from activist US fund Saba Capital to call for a Shareholder General Meeting, in which it looks to remove the existing Board of Directors and appoint its own representatives. They have further advised that they would look to replace Manulife | CQS Investment Management as the Manager, with the intention of a change of the Company’s mandate to a new unknown investment strategy. We urge Shareholders to use their vote, as we believe most shareholders are invested in this Company for access to the positive outlook that the resources present via this Company’s strong track record. The Company’s General Meeting is being held on 4th February 2025 and we would suggest that Shareholders vote at least one week before that date given differing platform cut-off dates.
