

M&G Global Macro Bond Fund Sterling Class I – Accumulation shares

Monthly Fund Review as at 29 February 2024

For investment professionals only

Highlights

- Government bond yields rose in February, as investors continued to reassess the chances of interest rate cuts and the state of the global and regional economies following the strong rally in the last part of 2023. Most of the fund's holdings are government bonds, which detracted from performance.
- Despite the pullback, we still think the main opportunity remains in duration and are comfortable retaining a long position here. We believe the more likely scenario for this year is not a soft landing, but a slowdown followed by central banks cutting rates. We have a bias to reduce inflation-linked positions as they outperformed fixed rates in the US.
- We continued to reduce credit risk at the margin, and we maintain our very selective approach to new issues. We reduced some utilities names where we have seen spreads narrowing strongly, and sold some financial floating rate bonds. We maintained our short exposure to high yield corporate bonds, which we initiated a year ago.

The main risks associated with this fund

For any past performance shown, please note that past performance is not a guide to future performance.

The value and income from the fund's assets will go down as well as up. This will cause the value of your investment to fall as well as rise. There is no guarantee that the fund will achieve its objective and you may get back less than you originally invested.

Investments in bonds are affected by interest rates, inflation and credit ratings. It is possible that bond issuers will not pay interest or return the capital. All of these events can reduce the value of bonds held by the fund.

High yield bonds usually carry greater risk that the bond issuers may not be able to pay interest or return the capital.

The fund can be exposed to different currencies. Movements in currency exchange rates may adversely affect the value of your investment.

The fund may use derivatives to profit from an expected rise or fall in the value of an asset. Should the asset's value vary in an unexpected way, the fund will incur a loss. The fund's use of derivatives may be extensive and exceed the value of its assets (leverage). This has the effect of magnifying the size of losses and gains, resulting in greater fluctuations in the value of the fund.

Investing in emerging markets involves a greater risk of loss as there may be difficulties in buying, selling, safekeeping or valuing investments in such countries.

Further risk factors that apply to the fund can be found in the fund's Prospectus.
