Are there other particular risks you should consider? The Risk and Reward Indicator does not provide an overall risk profile of the Fund, nor does it fully capture all the risks of investing in the Fund. Risks that you should consider include: market risk, interest rate risk, currency risk, foreign exchange risk, settlement risk, valuation risk, credit risk, liquidity risk, compliance risk, political risk, legal risk, custody risk, operational risk, counterparty risk, regional and country risk, risk of investing in China A shares or onshore debt securities, and high yield risk. Investments in less developed financial markets may expose the Fund to increased operational, legal and political risk. Derivative instruments are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the underlying asset that they are based on. Certain derivatives may result in losses greater than the amount originally invested. If a counterparty were to default, the unrealized profit on the derivative contract and its market exposure may be lost. The Fund intends to pay out all of the income earned by this Class. This may have the result that expenses of this Class may be paid out of capital. Payment of expenses out of capital amounts to a return or withdrawal of part of an investor's original investment, and limits its potential for generating income. For more details about risk, please refer to the Fund's Prospectus under "Risk Considerations," which is available at global.matthewsasias.com/prospectus.
