

Key Investor Information

This document provides you with key investor information about this Fund. It is not marketing material. The information is required by law to help you understand the nature and the risks of investing in this Fund. You are advised to read it so you can make an informed decision about whether to invest.

OBJECTIVES AND INVESTMENT POLICY

The Fund’s objective is to achieve long term capital growth.

The Fund is actively managed, and seeks to achieve its objective through investment primarily (and not less than 65% of NAV) in Asian equity and equity related securities (such as convertible bonds and warrants, and depositary receipts). The Fund may also invest in debt securities and money market instruments, and can also hold some cash. The Fund may invest up to 100% of NAV in emerging markets.

The Fund may also invest up to 10% of NAV in the units or shares of other investment funds.

The Investment Manager does not target any particular Asian region or sector, but seeks to identify companies in Asia which its research indicates are cash generative and which, in the opinion of the Investment Manager, have well established business models and appear able to deploy capital at favourable rates of return. The Fund may use FDI for both currency hedging and investment purposes.

Any income or gains of the Fund (net of expenses) will be accumulated and reinvested into the assets of the Fund.

Dividends may be paid and, if paid, such dividends will be applied in the purchase of further Shares (unless a Shareholder elects to receive cash).

Investors can buy, sell or switch shares on any day on which banks in Dublin are open for regular business (“Dealing Day”). Applications must be received by the Administrator by 11:59am (Irish time) on the relevant Dealing Day.

For full investment objective and policy details, please refer to the “Investment Objective” and “Investment Policies” sections of the Fund’s supplement (the “Supplement”).

Recommendation: This Fund may not be appropriate for investors who plan to withdraw their money in the short term (within 5 years). The Fund should be viewed as a longer term investment. This Fund may not be appropriate for investors who are not willing to accept the risks and volatility associated with investing in primarily Asian stock markets.

FDI: a derivative contract between two or more parties whose value depends on the rise and fall of the relative value/price of a referenced underlying asset.

NAV: net asset value of the Fund.

RISK AND REWARD PROFILE

The Fund is in category 6 as it is expected to hold assets that have historically been subject to higher levels of price fluctuation. The category shown is not guaranteed and may change over time. It is based on historic data and may not be a reliable indication of future circumstances. The lowest category does not mean a risk free investment.

The Fund is exposed to additional risks not captured by the risk indicator including, without limitation:

Company Shares Risk: the values of shares of companies are subject to changes in the issuing company’s financial condition and overall market and economic condition as well as market perception.

Counterparty Risk: a party with whom the Fund contracts for investments or to safekeep assets may fail to meet its obligations or become bankrupt, which may expose the Fund to a financial loss.

Currency Risk: changes in exchange rates may reduce or increase the value of non-USD denominated assets held by the Fund, which may impact the overall NAV regardless of the performance of the relevant assets themselves.

FDI Risk: FDI may increase Fund volatility or expose the Fund to losses greater than the cost of the derivative. FDI also involve counterparty risk.

Liquidity Risk: certain securities could become hard to value, or to sell at a desired time and price.

Emerging Market Countries Risk: emerging market securities are subject to greater social, political, regulatory, and currency risks than developed market securities. This may impact the liquidity and value of such securities and, consequently, the value of the Fund.

Operational Risk: human error, system and/or process failures, inadequate procedures or controls may cause losses to the Fund.

These risk factors are not exhaustive. Please review the “Risk Factors” sections in the Company’s prospectus (the “Prospectus”) and Supplement.
