MANAGER'S REVIEW

Investment background

Global equity markets were flat in May (MSCI ACWI +0.1% total return in USD), having been -5.8% for the month at the low point. Longer duration equities continued to lag as the initial casualty of higher cost of capital (MSCI ACWI Growth index -2.0%, NASDAQ Composite -1.9%). Market focus shifted somewhat from high inflation towards softer growth. The latest activity data in the US and, more broadly, globally has generally been underwhelming versus expectations but business surveys remain at levels signalling expansion. In contrast, consumer sentiment surveys are at levels previously seen amid deep recessions. Inflation breakevens began to fall from peaks as did the US dollar index (DXY). In the current environment, we're reminded of a Charlie Munger quotation: "It's not supposed to be easy. Anyone who finds it easy is stupid." UK Equities were again relative outperformers, the MSCI United Kingdom IMI Index rising +0.9%.

Strategy update

Performance

We are protecting capital values reasonably well during this difficult and volatile period. The Value factor is more supportive than it has been, though smaller companies continue to act as a drag as they are higher beta during this period of risk aversion.

The fund returned 1.9%¹ in May versus 0.9% by its comparator benchmark, the MSCI United Kingdom Investable Markets Index². Economically sensitive stocks seem to be consolidating at these low levels whilst large cap defensives failed to push on. The Energy sector continued to be robust, though North Sea producing stocks came under a lot of pressure from the Windfall Tax.

Positive contributors during the month included our overweight position in Standard Chartered and underweight positions in Diageo and Segro, the latter as investors worry that the warehousing sector is reaching maturity.

The main negative contributions were our underweight positions in Shell and overweight positions in the UK Exploration and Production stocks such as Harbour and Serica. We think these stocks have been overly punished, trade on very low valuation multiples even after taking into account their additional tax burden and will be able to take some mitigating measures, such as organic and inorganic investment in order to reduce their tax payments.

Activity

Our activity is focused on continuing to exploit the ever-larger PVT anomalies that are appearing as the market becomes very risk averse. Repeating last month's example below, Close Brothers is a lender and wealth manager that has always achieved an attractive and only modestly volatile return on equity; it has been around a long time and understands business and credit cycles; it has never been cheaper on a simple price to book basis, not even during the GFC (global financial crisis).

I have become increasingly interested in Real Estate stocks, starting with the UK but looking for opportunities elsewhere. They have sold off quite aggressively during the latest bout of big picture worries. This has left stocks such as British Land and Capital & Counties trading at material discounts to NAV despite their strong inflation hedge credentials and their robust recent fundamentals. London seems to be back to its vibrant and busy self, with strong foot fall and activity, positive for both these property companies which nevertheless have seen their share prices fall significantly. We have continued to add to the sector, taking a new position in Great Portland Estates.

We are also slowly adding to de-rated structural growers, especially in the world of small cap which has been aggressively sold off. This has included starting to build a position (in our very gradualist way) in Maxcyte (world leading IP in Cell therapy, enhancing the productivity of drug discovery) and Sigmaroc (aggregates consolidator).

We sold off our recently purchased holding in Schroders Nil Voting shares as the Board moved to enfranchise the shares, providing a respectable value uplift.

Outlook

As I have articulated in my recent quarterly report the big picture is confusing for most investors at the moment, so for me the current focus is the huge bottom-up stock picking opportunities, where this portfolio and indeed all three portfolios that I run are extremely lowly priced (following the market weakness my portfolios trade on less than 10x price to earnings and 1x sales) and have strong medium term shareholder value growth potential and strong balance sheets. The majority of shares that I own in my portfolios (there are quite a few!) trade at or close to their ten-year low valuations of profits, cash flow or assets.

In the short term it is difficult to say; perhaps the current fearful consensus is right and stagflation impacts and economic uncertainty will prevent these great value shares from rising in price; or perhaps the worries are consensual enough, having created such deeply discounted share prices for consumer and industrial cyclicals (for example) that any abating of stagflationary fears will lead to a quick shift in the narrative that will allow our lowly valued stocks to rebound vigorously. Probably a peaking in shorter term inflation indicators are required for beaten up shares to start to recover.
